WHO'S REALLY RUNNING AUSTRALIA?

Speaker:

Nick Cater

Nick is author of the explosive analysis in his just-released book, The Lucky Culture, a no holds barred account of who really "calls the shots" in Australia. Governments and elections come and go but the real (unelected) centres of power just keep promoting their agendas. Who are they? Cater has identified them and shows how they've been working towards transforming Australian culture into something the majority not only don't want, but generally don't realize it's happening.

He's a journalist of 30-years standing, a University of Exeter sociology graduate. His journalistic career began as a BBC studio manager in Britain. He joined News Ltd, publishers of Perth's The Sunday Times, in 1989 in Adelaide, has worked in Canberra and as a foreign correspondent in Asia, after which he joined Sydney's Daily Telegraph and has been a senior editorial executive at The Australian since 2004.

WHEN: Tuesday, July 23rd, 2013
TIME: 7.00pm for 7:30pm, (sharp)
WHERE: Royal Perth Yacht Club (River Room),
Australia II Drive, Crawley

Nick Cater says: "Australia's luck did not fall from the sky; it had to be torn from the earth in a triumph of mind over muscle.

"The secret of Australia's good fortune is the Australian character, the nation's greatest renewable resource. Liberated from the constraints of the old world, Australia's pioneers mined their reserves of enterprise, energy and ingenuity to build the great civilization of the south. Their over-riding principle was fairness: everybody had a right to a fair go and was obliged to do the right thing by others.

"But this spirit of egalitarianism is now threatened by the rise of a new breed of sophisticated Australians who claim to better understand the demands of the age. Their presumption of superior virtue tempts them to look down on others and assert the right to rule."
