The term “cultural marxism” is regularly raised by conservatives in debate as our western civilisation progresses down the path of cultural suicide. How does cultural marxism apply to Australia?

What is the history behind such a description and how does it relate to the cultural debates of today?

Why does the description apply to the leftist social side of the political debate?

Where do Antonio Gramsci and Saul Alinsky fit into the marxist cultural debate?

Are you aware of the detrimental effect of cultural marxism on western civilisation?
